How Did the Fund Perform Last Year and What Affected its Performance?

For the one-year period ended December 31, 2024, the Fund's Class I returned 11.94%.

Positioning

The Fund is typically exposed to more stable growth companies relative to its benchmark, the Russell 2000 Growth Index. With this positioning, the Fund generally lags in strong equity returns environments such as those observed in the last fiscal year.

Performance

The Fund's Class I posted a positive return during the period, while underperforming relative to its benchmark. Overall equity market returns were strong due to reasonably strong earnings growth, a stable employment picture and the anticipation of an accommodative Federal Reserve, which eased its fed funds target rate by 100 basis points over the course of the year. These factors also helped the Fund's performance.

What factors influenced performance?

The fiscal year was marked by strong equity performance, although overall returns for small cap securities lagged their larger cap counterparts substantially for the year. 2024 was the eighth consecutive year of small cap underperformance relative to large caps as measured by Russell 2000 Index versus the Russell 1000 Index, respectively. Consumer staples was the top performing sector within the Russell 2000 Growth Index, with information technology not far behind. The information technology sector was a strong performer across the capitalization spectrum in 2024, and while the Fund held an overweight position within the sector during the year, it did not own the largest weighting within the benchmark for fundamental reasons, which resulted in a relative performance headwind for the first half of the Fund's fiscal year. Similar to information technology, results within the consumer staples sector were negatively impacted by not owning a company with a large benchmark weight due to valuation considerations. With the dip in short-term interest rates during the year, more interest rate-sensitive sectors such as financials and industrials also performed well, and the Fund benefitted somewhat from its overweight position in those sectors. Further, infrastructure-related holdings within industrials also helped the Fund's absolute and relative performance.

Top Contributors:

The largest contributors to the Fund's performance were positive stock selection within the consumer discretionary and materials sectors.

Individual name contributors (portfolio contribution to return basis):

- Q2 Holdings, Inc. (QTWO)
- Construction Partners, Inc. Class A (ROAD)
- Comfort Systems USA, Inc. (FIX)

Top Detractors:

Negative security selection within the health care and information technology sectors detracted from the Fund's performance. Cash held within the Fund was also a drag on performance for the fiscal year.

Individual name detractors (portfolio contribution to return basis):

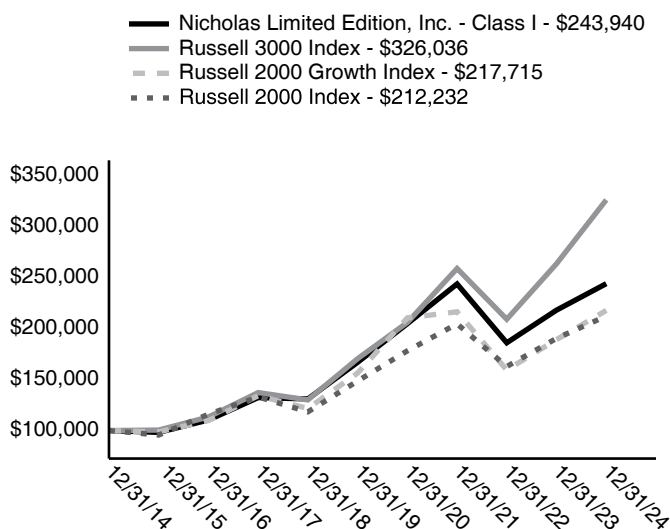

- Five9, Inc. (FIVN)
- Pacira Biosciences, Inc. (PCRX)
- Qualys, Inc. (QLYS)

Investment approaches cycle in and out of favor, and a focus on quality businesses with sustainable competitive advantages while remaining cognizant of the price paid has been out of favor since the market bottom of October 2022. The investment team remains focused on owning what we believe are high-quality growth companies with sustainable competitive advantages, consistent revenue and earnings growth, strong balance sheets, operated by responsible management teams, and that are trading at reasonable valuations.

Comparison of a Change in Value of a $100,000 Investment As of December 31, 2024

The following graph compares the performance of the Class to that of the Russell 3000 Index, the Russell 2000 Index and the Russell 2000 Growth Index. The indices are not available for investment and are unmanaged. Returns for the indices do not reflect charges, expenses or taxes but do include the reinvestment of dividends, if any. The comparison is shown for illustrative purposes only.

The Russell 3000 Index measures the performance of the largest 3,000 US companies designed to represent approximately 98% of the investable US equity market. The Russell 2000 Index measures the performance of the 2000 smallest companies in the Russell 3000 Index, which represent approximately 98% of the total market capitalization of the Russell 3000 Index. The Russell 2000 Growth Index measures the performance of those Russell 2000 companies with higher price-to-book ratios and higher forecasted growth values.
